

So after a number of years of this group (recently called it4dc) meeting what successes can we point to, especially since the website began in late July? They can be broken up into 2 categories, the ones that Dip has benefited from and then everyone else.

The group's successes include:

- A couple finding their ideal realtor and selling their home at the price they wanted when they were dissatisfied with their previous realtor
- A couple finding love and getting married earlier this year – yes !
- 2 people who were introduced to job opportunities that they ordinarily would not have found or been looking for
- Several folks who have been introduced to potential clients in the Financial Services industry
- Author writer introduction to a small boutique Publishing house owner to provide advice on the process and challenge
- Support of small associations and their professional goals
- Owner of website developer company introduced to new potential clients for services
- Support for fellow it4dc member's events, charity, professional or otherwise

Dip's successes include:

- Meeting some very exceptional people that have become friends
- My current job
- Several business introductions that have led in the past and may lead to joint business ventures as we move forward

They are starting to grow but I am sure there are a number of you who have your own stories and I would encourage you to add them to the website so that others can really see the value of the group.
